Jordan, EU stress 'no economic proposal can solve Mideast conflict'

There are no alternatives to the two-state solution for the Palestinian-Israeli conflict, Foreign Minister Ayman Safadi and EU High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy and Vice President of the European Commission Federica Mogherini said on Tuesday. The minister and Mogherini stressed that no economic proposal can replace a prospective solution founded on the basis of the two-state solution, according to a Foreign Ministry statement. The officials' remarks were made during a joint press conference that was held after they had co-chaired the 13th session of the Jordan-EU Association Council and following Safadi's participation in the meeting of the EU's Foreign Affairs Council, attended by 24 foreign ministers of the bloc's member countries. The press conference was held with the attendance of European Commissioner for European Neighbourhood Policy and Enlargement Negotiations Johannes Hahn.

His remarks came during a press conference to discuss the activities of an international fair and meeting of construction and engineering industries, held by the JCCA under the motto "Jordan and Iraq, Partnership and Building", which will run from June 24-27.

Rose-red city witnesses rise in tourist footfall

Visitors to the rose-red city of Petra rose by 44 per cent, or some 128,000 people, when comparing the first five months of 2019 with 2018, Jordan Tourism Board (JTB) Managing Director Abed Al Razzaq Arabiyat said on Tuesday.

Last year, around 292,000 people came to Petra, some 220km south of Amman, by the end of May, Arabiyat said, adding that this year that number totalled 420,000. The number of foreign tourists to the Kingdom in general witnessed a remarkable increase, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported, citing a JTB statement.
